Dependency Status for Financial Aid

Students under the age of 24 who do not meet any of the qualifications to be considered independent on the FAFSA or WASFA must provide parental information. A student with unusual circumstances may request a dependency override. Examples of unusual circumstances may include abuse by parents, abandonment by or death of parents, or a self-supporting youth who does not have stable, permanent, or adequate housing.

A dependency override CANNOT be approved for the following reasons: the student's parent(s) refuse to provide their information on the FAFSA or WASFA, the student is no longer claimed on their parent(s)' taxes, or the student is self-supporting (unless they are at-risk of homelessness).
