Students who can't get their parents' info for the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) can ask for an Unsubsidized Federal Direct Loan, but only if their parents say they won't give the info or help. If students go this route, they can't get grants, work study jobs, or subsidized loans. Also, their parents can't borrow Federal PLUS Loans.

Both parents need to sign that they agree to these things:

1. Both parents have stopped giving any financial help to the student, like housing, food, clothes, insurance, cars, paying bills, or giving cash since _____. (mm/dd/yyyy)
2. Neither parent will help with financial support of any kind in the future.
3. Both parents refuse to give their info for the FAFSA now and have not already provided it for the 2024-25 aid year.
